Alexian Village Earns a Deficiency Free Rating by State Regulators

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

January 5, 2012

The Wisconsin Department of Health completed its survey of Alexian Village Health and Rehabilitation Center on 12/1/11 and noted no deficiencies. For residents, family members and those looking for a health and rehabilitation center, a deficiency-free survey offers assurance that Alexian Village provides excellent service and care in a well-run community.

"The Wisconsin 4 day inspection process is very intensive and to have a deficiency-free report shows the outstanding care and dedication that is provided by the employees at Alexian Village," said Debbie Curran, Administrator of the Health and Rehabilitation Center. The state survey, which takes place annually and without advance notice, is conducted to ensure that facilities provide the proper level of care and the structure and safety of the facility is maintained.

Throughout this process, state surveyors commented on how impressed they were with the facility, programing and especially the wonderful comments from the residents themselves.

The survey encompasses a review of all aspects of the resident's physical, psychosocial, and emotional life as it pertains to the services provided by Alexian Village. Surveyors interviewed residents and staff, observed all aspects of nursing care, therapy, social work, dietary, activities, plant operations, medical records and various other departments, who all contribute to the success of the Health and Rehabilitation Center. When each of the numerous and extensive regulations are met, the facility is then awarded a deficiency-free survey, which is the case for Alexian Village.

"A deficiency-free survey doesn't just happen," Curran said. "It takes the dedication of a hard-working staff, as well as ongoing education for all associates to keep them current with today's standards of care. The commitment to excellence must be ongoing." It is the goal of the Health Center staff that all who enter as guests, leave as friends.
